The Divorce Scandal.

Correspondence between the governor of Pennsylvania and other state executives directs attention to the fact that the Pennsylvania legislature has given to divorce so much consideration that it now is ready to spend some money in an effort to help abate the divorce scandal. Pennsylvania has appropriated $10,000 for delegates to an interstate convention for the purpose of so harmonizing the divorce laws and proceedings of the states that something like uniformity may prevail.

In the nature of things the proposed convention may not be able to do much and certainly cannot do anything very quickly. To produce the desired uniformity will be the work of years, and it is doubtful if such uniformity can ever be produced by state action as will absolutely end the scandalous situations now constantly arising. It is probable that nothing short of national control of marriage and divorce would be a complete remedy. But the convention may at least help to awaken and educate public opinion to the necessity of doing something.

When the perfectly legal marriage of a man and woman in Missouri becomes a criminal act if performed in Kansas—when a man who is legally married in South Dakota is a bigamist in New York, and his wife and children without legal status—when communities advertise "easy marriage" as an attraction for holiday visitors from neighboring states—when "quick divorce" is held out as a state's inducement to tourists with money to spend—the scandal is one that cries for attention. It is one whose continued tolerance is a menace to civilization. The Pennsylvania legislature has done well. Other legislatures should follow its example. Time, money, and effort are well spent on any movement promising to abate the great American divorce scandal.

A Sad Death.

A very sad death occurred last Friday evening, August 25th, 1905. The eight months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carpenter died from the effects of poison. On a shelf in the Carpenter home was a box of strychnine and belladonna pills. By some means the child got hold of them, and as they were sugar coated and red, it ate several of them. When Mrs. Carpenter discovered what had been done, she snatched the child up and took it to D. R. Whittier's restaurant. There Dr. Davis was called, but before he could reach the scene the babe was dead.

Mrs. Carpenter was almost frantic with grief, which was rendered worse by the fact that Mr. Carpenter was out in the country at work. He was sent for and came as soon as possible. The little one was laid away in the K. of P. cemetery, Sunday afternoon. The community deeply sympathizes with Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter in their grief.—Maitland Herald.

—About two weeks ago, P. H. Bradbury was storing away a mow in the hay loft of the barn on A. S. Smith's place adjoining town, where he is living. In some manner the hay slipped and to prevent being struck in the face Mr. Bradbury threw up his arm, receiving a gash near the elbow which almost reached the bone. The wound did not heal readily, and a few days later, after the arm had become badly swollen, he consulted Dr. J. C. Tracy, who found that erysipelas had set in and an abscess had formed. Last Saturday and Sunday Mr. Bradbury suffered intensely and some fears were entertained that amputation might become necessary. Dr. Tracy thinks now he will be able to save the arm, but it will be some time before Mr. Bradbury will have the use of it.—Mound City News.
